ICE

Joe . . . and company

I.C.E. is designed for technical, business and career work. It is an elective that involves a 1/2 day of work. Some students train for the construction trade, for college, technical school. It opens the doors for apprentices. They have worked with 62 students this year ranging from hog farmers, bankers, educators to clerical and have participated with 50 different employers. The following students were present:

Jason Leman - worked for Leman Builders - will continue after school.
Amanda Wenger - worked for The Financial Center - will attend ISU.
Scott Gregory - Radio Shack in sales - going to Parkland
Deanna Stephens - Westview Kindergarden - going to EIU
Lindsay Winegar - Faithful Friends - going to Iowa Central
Abby Tribley - P.C.H.S. Secretary - going to McKinder College

Jeff then gve them a key chain with the 4-way test and a card with our Rotary Objective.

BITS & PIECES

A mixture of horse sense and common sense about working with people.

Taking It With You!

A miser loved money more than anything else. He saved almost every dollar he earned, depriving his wife and family of even the simple pleasures of life.

Just before he died, he gave his wife instructions for the handling of his estate.

"When I die, I want you to take all my money and put it in the casket with me. Because I wanna take my money to the afterlife with me." And so he got his wife to promise that she would put all of his money in the casket with him.

On the day of the funeral, his wife was sitting in the church with a friend. When the eulogy was finished, the wife put a box in the open casket.

Then the undertakers locked the casket down and rolled it away. The widow's friend turned to her and said, "Mary, after what that man put you through all your life, I didn't think you'd be foolish enough to put all that money in the casket with him."

"I had to keep my promise," Mary said. "But I did write him a check," she added with a smile.
